Five Suggestions for a First-Timer:

1. Arrive EARLY! Readings start promptly, and they quickly get crowded. Full event? Don't worry! Go to twitter.com/litquake for updates.
2. Wear walking shoes! The 2010 Lit Crawl is the longest (1.6 miles) ever.
3. This is San Francisco. There is no parking. Take BART or Muni. Or ride your bike, and use one of the new racks along Valencia.
4. Check out Clarion Alley between 17th and 18th Streets during any of the three Crawl phases for more readings and Bawdy Storytelling!
5. Have fun! The Lit Crawl only lasts 3.5 hours so use your time wisely!

LITQUAKE
SAN FRANCISCO'S LITERARY FESTIVAL

Welcome to the World's Largest Lit Crawl

OCTOBER 9, 2010

PLEASE SUPPORT and patronize all the venues for graciously hosting our readers. Also, please donate to Litquake if possible—your contributions to Litquake will assure that the fabulous Lit Crawl endures through the years!

All Lit Crawl events are FREE and OPEN to the public, and some venues are 21 and over only

TICKETS AND MORE INFO litquake.org

WELCOME to the most anticipated literary night of the year—the enormous, fabulous, and notorious LIT CRAWL!!!

This year we bring you a whopping 66 venues and almost 400 authors, spread over three phases (Phase 1: 6:00–7:00, Phase 2: 7:15–8:15, Phase 3: 8:30–9:30).

Hear writers perform readings in bars, cafes, bookstores, art galleries, community centers, a laundromat, and even the Mission Police Station! From San Quentin inmates to Buddhist writers, dog lovers, Stanford professors, and a multi-orgasmic couple, there's literally an event for everyone—even if you are not an incarcerated Buddhist humanities professor who loves dogs and is multi-orgasmic.
